

ATTORNEY, A GREEK, SAYS U. S. SHOULD PROTEST TO TURKEY

Friend of Consul Tsakonas Here Declares Abrogation of Treaties, Concerns Safety of Americans.

Soterios Nicholson, of Washington, D. C., a Greek attorney and student of international law, who is visiting in Philadelphia, today told how the abrogation of the treaties by Turkey was of vital concern to the United States since by that action the safety of every foreign resident in that country was threatened, including thousands of missionaries and other Americans who make their permanent home there.

Mr. Nicholson was at the office of Aristotle Tsakonas, the Greek Consul here. He is a personal friend of Consul Tsakonas, and on his way to New York stopped off here to visit the official. "I do not think," he said, "that the significance of the capitulations made years ago by Turkey and now abrogated is generally appreciated. Under them foreign residents in Turkey have had the right to be judged by their own respective consulates exclusively; secondly, they have possessed special civil privileges such that in all questions of criminal procedure and in fact of general deportment, they have been liable solely to their own governments. Thus, no Turkish official has had the right to enter into the dwelling of a foreigner or arrest one, unless equipped with a special permit from the consulate concerned. Thirdly, the native government was not allowed to levy professional taxes upon the foreign residents; and fourthly, it could not regulate the amount of its customs duties without the consent of the foreign powers. In general, the above privileges may be regarded as constituting extra territorial rights, and it is chiefly the ones coming under the first two headings that will affect the status of the Americans living in Turkey.

"First there is the legal aspect to be considered. As others have already pointed out it is rather astonishing that treaties which have constituted the very condition of Turkey's existence as a State are now abrogated without warning and without negotiation. Such a violation of mutual agreement is a very serious matter indeed, but Turkey knows that now the European Powers are hardly pressed with their own troubles at home and hopes that they will be unable to resort to effective measures in denouncing the violation.

"Foreign statements of the preceding generations had forced the above concessions from the Turkish Government because it was evident to them that under ordinary circumstances the said Government could not guarantee security and freedom to their nationals. The country had simply not reached that stage in the evolution of political organization which would render it capable of supervising the affairs of the citizens of foreign countries. But with the advent of the new regime in 1828 the Young Turks have been continuously and insistently clamoring for the abrogation of the capitulations, claiming that conditions had changed since freedom had been declared and that the Young Turks were now independent. Nevertheless, the Powers refused to consent.

Facts justified their course; the Armenian massacres, troubles in Syria, the insurrection in Arabia, the insurrection in Albania and the maladministration of affairs in Macedonia, following immediately after the end of the consular system, proved that much had yet to be done in the line of political evolution.

"In plain words, Turkish law and administration is not an effective guarantee of the safety of foreign lives and interests, and has violated treaties that insured that safety. In the great case, I think it is the duty of the United States, at present the greatest neutral State, to declare to Turkey that this country realizes its own responsibility to the Ottoman Government and that it cannot brook the unwarranted breaking off of treaties; and to bring home to the Ottoman Government that this Government is determined to make use of all necessary means to the end of securing proper observance of the treaties by the Ottoman Government."

QUALIFY ON MOTORCYCLES

Examination Produces Three Eligibles for Lieutenant in Police Service.

Three police candidates qualified in the recent examination of the civil service commission for lieutenant in the motorcycle service. The salary is $1800 a year. The eligible list includes William J. McGowan, 13 South Twenty-fourth street, average 76.9; Charles W. Cassel, 1323 Van Ness street, average 72.3; George W. Fritz, 2113 North Franklin street, average 72.19. Director of Public Safety Porter was advised by the Civil Service Commission that the averages attained by the applicants were in the general examination for lieutenant of police. A test of ability to operate a motorcycle was given the candidates, but did not affect the average. George W. Fritz, one of the eligibles, has been acting lieutenant in the motorcycle squad at Tenth and Thompson streets for the last two years.

NINE CHILDREN SAVE FATHER

Faces Prison Sentence When Wife Prefers Charge of Cruelty.

The nine children of Frederick Hartman, 230 Pratt street, saved him from prison today. Hartman was arrested on a charge of cruelty perpetrated by his wife. He was arraigned before Magistrate Sampbell in the Heligraze and Clearfield streets police station. The Magistrate was about to send Hartman to the House of Correction when he learned that he had nine children to support. After tearfully denouncing him for his neglect, he sent Hartman back to work and advised Mrs. Hartman to take the matter up with the Municipal Court, if her husband again failed to provide for his family.

DOG'S FAITHFULNESS IN DANGER COSTS HIS LIFE

Swept Overboard When Wave Threatens Sea Captain, His Master.

Defiance of his master's orders to leave him alone on the bridge of the steamship Catherine Cuneo during a storm off the coast of Cape Hatteras, cost the life of Bismark, a valuable and loved Newfoundland dog, according to the story told by the sailors on board the vessel today. Gloom pervaded the ship as she lay at her dock at Race street wharf. It was perceptible in the officers' quarters and in the forecastle. Old faithful Bismark had gone to his doom and tears stood in the eyes of every member of the crew from Captain Sorenson to the cabin boy as they told of the merits of the animal. Captain Sorenson will feel the loss most deeply. Bismark was his dog, and he said as much as he loved his ship he would rather have been transferred from her to another than to have lost the dog. Mrs. Sorenson, who was attached to Bismark, in a way on a vacation and does not know of his death. Captain Sorenson said she would be inconsolable, as the animal had been her guardian whom she was on board. On several occasions Bismark saved the lives of members of the crew by dragging them to safety when waves threatened to carry them overboard.

RIVER BILL URGED BY RANDELL FOR BENEFIT OF LABOR

Nearly 30,000 Men to Be Laid Off Oct. 1 Unless Measure Passes, Louisiana Congressman Shows.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Statistics prepared in the office of the Chief of Engineers, at the request of Senator Randell, of Louisiana, show that by October 1 almost 30,000 Government and contractors' employes engaged on river and harbor work will be laid off. The Delaware River project will be affected greatly by the failure to pass the river and harbor bill.

Senator Randell, who has been making the fight of his life to get the bill passed, after studying the summary made by the Chief of Engineers from the reports of division and district engineers, said: "At this time, with an awful European war raging and with hundreds of thousands of our own people thrown out of employment because of the lessened demand for articles of American production, it becomes, in my judgment, the imperative duty of the nation to increase the effective force of our laborers and wage earners, instead of permitting it to be diminished."

CAPTURES FUGITIVE GIRL

Patrolman Overtakes One Who Fleed From Social Service Home.

One of the three girls who escaped Saturday night from the Court of Social Service Home, 1204 Summer street, was captured at 1 o'clock this morning at Sixth and Walnut streets by Patrolman Warren, of the Third and B Lancaster streets station. The policeman noticed a girl trying to shield herself from the glare of the electric arc lamps as she walked very cautiously across the street. When the policeman approached the girl started to flee, but was soon overtaken by the policeman. Being unable to give a satisfactory explanation of her actions, she was taken to the Central police station.

ARSENAL READY TO AUGMENT OUTPUT OF WAR'S MESSENGERS

Arrangements Made at Frankford Plant to Take Care of Emergency in Case of Rush Order.

Arrangements were made today at the Frankford Arsenal to place that institution in condition to take care of any emergency in case of a rush order for materials. This was announced by Lieutenant Colonel George Montgomery, commanding officer of the plant. Colonel

Montgomery has just returned from Europe. The work of readjustment from now on will be pushed as rapidly as possible. "By January 1," he said, "we expect to have things so arranged at the arsenal that should the Government at Washington feel so disposed, or called upon to increase our appropriation, enabling us to augment the output of the place, we will be in a position to do what is required." Colonel Montgomery said he was at work collecting the names of all old employees of the arsenal. This is being done, he added, so that they can be located and put to work at the quickest possible notice. By the first of the year it is expected that, if called upon, officials at the plant will be able to place two shifts of men at work one week after notice, and to be running three shifts every 24 hours before the expiration of a month. Colonel Montgomery returned from Europe last Saturday on the Cunard liner 'Campania.' He went abroad on August 12 for a rest. He said he was visibly impressed by the state of preparedness which existed in nearly every country in Europe prior to the war, enabling them to plunge almost at a moment's notice into the great conflict. He suggested that this country might do well to follow to a certain extent this example of preparedness. He had no trouble in obtaining return passage to America, he said. Going over and coming back the ships on which he traveled passed several foreign warships. The 'Campania' kept her portholes darkened at night during the entire voyage, because her captain was taking no chances of running afoul of hostile craft.
